We are bombarded daily with media accounts of violence in our world. We may feel overwhelmed, depressed, or angry about what is happening. This book focuses on solutions. It helps to develop a peaceable imagination, & offers possibilities for involvement in the domains of the self, the family, community & the larger culture. In clear & explicit tones, PATHWAYS provides pragmatic information so that peacemaking is accessible to everyone. Looking for tools to deal with your own stress levels? Concerned about how to build resilience, & help your children avoid victimization? Want to get involved in reducing racism or making your local school safer? You will find all the information & resources you need in this book. Each of us, in our own ways, can be part of the solution. Whether you are a parent, teacher, member of the clergy or business community, health or social service worker, policymaker, or elder, this book will help you to blaze trails to a more peaceable future. PATHWAYS TO PEACE maps out a journey for every American concerned about violence. Included are practical guidelines on everything from bullyproofing children to creating arks of peace, together with timely insights & constructive resources for decreasing violence at home, in schools & communities, & most importantly, ourselves.
